In our day, the beautiful virtue of “tolerance” is constantly talked about. Its opposite, “intolerance”, is often flung in accusation at political or cultural opponents. The opening of today’s gospel passage shows Jesus being tolerant.

On this occasion Jesus had fixed his face firmly to go to Jerusalem. He knew He was going to His death. He had determined to take the shortest route; the shortcut lay through traditional enemy territory – Samaria. The Samaritans made it as difficult as possible for Jews to make the yearly Passover pilgrimage. Jesus’ request for shelter and food was no different. James and John were so outraged that they recommended destruction of the village by fire. In spite of the refusal of hospitality and the spurning of Jesus’ extended hand of friendship, Jesus did not deviate from His plan.

In our time of partisan zeal and miserable bigotry of all kinds, some good people get the idea that their beliefs and methods are the only correct ideas and methods. The tolerance of Christ is not focused on mistakes, but on persons. Christian tolerance sees the person with whom we disagree with eyes of love. Tolerance is never indifferent to evil. It is about loving the sinner. It is about fixing our face firmly on Jerusalem, and following Jesus, who died for all - even Samaritans.
